

November 21, 2006

Don Johnston Incorporated
26799 West Commerce Drive
Volo, Illinois 60073

Dear Mr. Johnston:

My Developmental Reading class at Marshall High School read your book Building Wings. I've enjoyed the book. It really made me think about how to live life. No one in this world is perfect. People are weak in some areas and strong in others. For example, Mr. Johnston, look at you now. No one would think of you becoming so successful in life. I learned a lot from you. You know a lot of people in school call me slow and stupid. I just look at them and walk away. In your case I learned that if you really want to be successful you must keep trying. I really felt good when you fought to do well in Algebra. You still didn't know how to read well, but you didn't give up on getting an A in school.

I know that you designed the Neo* that I am using to write this letter. The Neo is the best word processor I've ever used. I think it's very neat. I would like to say thank you for everything. Someday I would like to meet you. I think you're cool!

Sincerely yours,

* Don Johnston is the creator and developer of Co:Writer and also sells NEO products